

The Institute for Social Entrepreneurs

Seminars, workshops and consulting services for social entrepreneurs in the United States and around the world

The Social Enterprise Sourcebook Table of Contents

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction (by Jerr Boschee)

Case 1: "We ran out of cash . . . "

Pillsbury United Communities

Minneapolis/St. Paul

How Tony Wagner survived the failure of two businesses -- but succeeded with a third

Case 2: The demilitarized zone

St. Vincent DePaul Rehabilitation Service, Inc.

Portland, Oregon

How Roy Soards survived the culture wars

Case 3: The readiness is all

Road to Responsibility, Inc.

Marshfield, Massachusetts

How Rick Walker turned his stakeholders into risk-takers

(and created seven small businesses, with more to come)

Case 4: Buyer beware

Bobby Dodd Industries

Atlanta

How Barbara Massey escaped from a franchising nightmare

-- and formed a partnership that works

Case 5: "$36 an hour!"

Skookum Abatement Services, Inc.

Port Townsend, Washington

How Jim Westall helps former welfare recipients earn annual salaries of $70,000 or more

Case 6: "Power comes from below . . . "

Esperanza Unida

Milwaukee

How Richard Oulahan put his trust in the people he serves and started more than a dozen businesses

Case 7: "She was fiercely independent . . . "

Applied Industries, Inc.

Longview, Washington

How Dale Novotny's company grew without ever taking any money from grantmakers or the government

Case 8: "We were sunk . . . "

UDAC Inc.

Duluth, Minnesota

How Bobbie Lenz and her team recovered

when their anchor customer disappeared

Case 9: Culture clash

Chrysalis

Los Angeles

How everything changed when Dave McDonough started hiring people who knew what they were doing

Case 10: Against all odds . . .

Binding Together, Inc.

New York city

How Vince Poppiti runs a successful business despite losing all his employees every six months

Case 11: Something had to be done . . .

Provident Counseling, Inc.

St. Louis

How Kathleen Buescher saved one business by starting another

Case 12: When Ben met Bernie . . .

Greyston Bakery

Yonkers, New York

How a Zen Buddhist priest married spirituality with social action and forged a partnership with a major corporation

Case 13: "One truck at a time . . ."

Triangle Residential Options for Substance Abusers, Inc.

Durham, North Carolina

How Kevin McDonald built an interstate trucking company by employing ex-cons and recovering drug addicts

Case 14: Farewell to the "client worker"

Gulf Coast Enterprises

Pensacola, Florida

How Rich Gilmartin converted a sheltered workshop into a $30 million business

The Institute for Social Entrepreneurs
6215 Sandydale Drive
Dallas, Texas 75248-3942
United States of America
Telephone: +01-214-866-0472
E-mail address: institute@orbis.net

© Copyright 1999-2007